TROPICAL TRAINING.

Billy Woods Tells of Hard Work To Get Perfection.

"I have trained East and West, working on champion fighters and on myself," said Billy Woods at his gymnasium yesterday, "but this kind of climate is the hardest in which to gain perfection. It is fairly easy to keep in ordinary good physical shape but when it comes down to making a special effort to get fit one has to be careful."

"I think the reason of it is that there is no spring to the climate, if you get overtired it is hard for the muscles to regain their elasticity. One is apt to lose weight too rapidly and then, once down to proper scale measure, you are liable to go stale if there is any length of time before the event comes off."

"No, I don't think I am likely to go stale," said the big fellow, as he batted his punching bag a love tap that bumped it against the top of the stand with a smash. "I am in as good condition as ever I was and I can render a good account of myself. Am I going to win? Well, I have never tried to forecast a match yet. Millet is a good man and I guess both of us will do our best."

Millet was out for a jog this morning at Waikiki and is not talking much. His trainers and backers are confident of his success and he looks the picture of healthy strength. The box office opens tomorrow morning at 9 at the Orpheum.

GOOD JOBS FOR EX-GOVERNOR

Favorite Place To Send Them Seems To Be the United States Senate.—Many Are Elected.

The roll of senators in very rapidly becoming a roll of ex-governors of states. Over a dozen men of the present Senate at some time filled the gubernatorial chair, and in most instances made it a stepping stone to the so-called upper branch of Congress. Many of the big states have an ex-governor in the Senate. Missouri, one of the largest democratic states, has sent ex-Gov. Stone in place of Senator Vest. He is one of the most astute politicians in the party, vice-chairman of the democratic national committee and widely known. He was sworn in, together with Senator Clarke of Arkansas, another new senator and an ex-governor of that state. Still another new senator, an ex-governor, is Senator McCreary of Kentucky. Senator Perkins of California had made his political reputation as a state, executive, as had Senator Foraker of Ohio, who was elected to two terms and also twice defeated for governor of the Buckeye state. Senator Tillman's first office was that of governor of South Carolina, and there he inaugurated the famous dispensary law. Vermont is the only state with two ex-governors in the Senate. Mr. Proctor served as lieutenant-governor before becoming governor, and Mr. Dillingham made a splendid record in the executive office.

Senator Daniel was democratic nominee for governor of Virginia, and was defeated. Senator Wetmore was twice governor of Rhode Island, and then defeated for a third term. Senator McEnery of Louisiana was nominated for governor of his state, but was defeated in 1892 by his present colleague in the Senate, M. J. Foster, as the anti-lottery candidate. Senator Bacon of Georgia came within one vote of being nominated for the governorship of the Empire state of the South. Senator Nelson came from the North Star state by virtue of the appropriation with which he had been received as governor thereof. Senator Bate was twice governor of Tennessee, and Senator Dietrich resigned his place as governor of Nebraska to accept the election. Senator Warren served under two presidents, Arthur and Harrison, as territorial governor of Wyoming, and when the territory became a state was the first elected of its governors, afterward coming to the Senate.

ASIATIC WAR IS CERTAIN.

The navy's idea of the destiny of man was expressed by Rear-Admiral Luce at the opening of the naval war college the other day. "Any future problems in the destiny of man," said he, "will be worked out through the instrumentality of the sword. There is no escaping it." This is the conviction at the bottom of Admiral "Bob" Evans' soul when he manifests his regret at coming home from China. Admiral Evans is confident that there will be another scrap over there in a short time. And he would much like to be in it.—Springfield Republican.

JEROME A TRIFLE HEADY.

District Attorney Jerome's remark, "Give me headlines and you can have the editorials," means that he regards the headlines as the most influential part of a newspaper. Mr. Jerome is a fine fellow, but a trifle heady, which may account for his headlines preferences.

A DISTINGUISHED HORSEMAN.

John H. Wallace, an authority on the trotting horse and on the breeding of horses, is dead within a few months of his 81st anniversary. On account of poor health in his youth he went to farming in Iowa and grew strong, becoming an influential citizen, and doing much toward organizing the industries and schools of the state, then but just developing. He was for some years secretary of the state board of agriculture, and perceiving the need of an authority on pedigrees of thoroughbred horses, he compiled the "American Stud Book," published in 1867 in New York city, where he soon after took up and has retained his residence. He published in 1871 the first volume of his Trotting Register; a second volume appeared in 1874 and a third in 1879; the three contained about 10,000 pedigrees, besides statistical tables. In 1885 Mr. Wallace published a Year Book, and the Wallace trotting register company was organized in 1889, all these and others of his publications becoming the property of the company. Mr. Wallace did his work thoroughly, and held the highest place in these matters.

ACROSS SOUTH AMERICA.

According to the United States consul at Valparaiso, a railroad to connect that port with Buenos Ayres over the Andes is now assured and will be finished in a few years. The Argentine government is building up to the mountains on its side, and the Chilean Congress has just provided for the construction of its share of the transcontinental line. This road was projected 20 years ago, and will be the first to cross the South American continent. It will shorten the distance from Europe to Chili by six to eight days for traffic shipped at Buenos Ayres instead of passing around, as now, by the straits of Magellan.

WAS APPOINTED BY LINCOLN

United States Circuit Judge Henry C. Caldwell of Little Rock, Arkansas, Resigns.

Attorney-General Knox has received the resignation of Judge Henry C. Caldwell of the United States Circuit Court of the Eighth Circuit. His home was in Little Rock, Ark. Judge Caldwell retires under the act of Congress which authorizes the retirement of United States Judges when they have attained the age of 70 years or have served ten years or more on the bench.

Henry C. Caldwell has been a United States Judge for thirty-nine years, and is one of the best known jurists of the day. He is a West Virginian, but removed to Iowa when a boy, over sixty years ago, and is thoroughly Western in his ideas and sympathies. He served in the Union Army during the Civil War and became Colonel of a cavalry regiment. In 1864 President Lincoln honored him with the appointment of United States District Judge for Arkansas, a place which he held with such acceptability that in 1890 President Harrison gave him a still higher judicial rank by appointing him Judge of the Eighth United States Circuit, the area of his jurisdiction extending over ten states and four territories.

Some prominent characteristics of Judge Caldwell are strength of statement, vigor of thought and love of substantial justice. He is described by the most competent authority as "one of those Judges, of which there are too few, who know the use and abuse of what is called technicality," and who have not only learning, but "penetrating common sense."

INDIANA'S FAVORITE SON.

Senator Fairbanks sedately rises to say that Mr. Roosevelt will be nominated for president. This is important, if not tragic, in view of the following dispatch which the chairman of the Indiana Republican State committee sent a week ago to the New York World:

Indiana is for Charles W. Fairbanks for president in 1904, and she will never surrender.—Springfield Republican.

AFFAIRS COMPLETED.

Two Brothers Figure in Alleged Bad
Check Episode.

Considerable complication is likely to ensue over the Combs brothers. Yesterday Sheriff Andrews of Hawaii was notified by wireless telegraph to arrest J. A. Combs on a charge of passing a worthless check. Subsequent developments indicate that J. J. Combs should have been the man.

From statements made to the police it appears that J. A. Combs who has been ill in the hospital for six weeks, signed a number of blank checks which he turned over to his brother, J. J. Combs. The latter passed these checks which were drawn on the Bishop bank, while at Hawaii. J. J. Combs is alleged to have tried to pass one of these checks on Admiral Beckley purser of the steamer Kinai for passage from Hilo to Honolulu. Beckley refused to accept the check and put the young man off at Mahukona.

Subsequently when Beckley arrived here he caused the police to wire for the arrest of "J. A. Combs" as this was the name of a check that had been given to the purser of the steamer Maui for passage from Honolulu to Hilo.

It now appears that the man who passed the alleged worthless checks was J. J. Combs and not J. A. Combs. It is not improbable that charges of some character may be made against J. A. Combs for aiding and abetting his brother in the passing of alleged worthless checks as the bank repudiated the checks.
